

Blessing N Okigweh

November 22, 1956 - December 7, 2022

It's with deep sadness and a heavy heart that I announced the passing of my mother, Blessing N. Okigweh of Austin Texas. She was known to her family as "B", to her friends as Ms. Blessing, but to me simply as mom.

She was a spiritual woman. Devout in her faith, praying daily and referring to it as her conversations with God. Even with life's many struggles, she never lost her faith. She believed that tomorrow would be a better day as long as you believed and kept God close to your heart .

Those who had the honor of knowing her knew the warmth and love she radiated. Always providing a kind gesture or dispensing words of wisdom. Anything to let people know that they were not only thought of, but also loved .

Nothing was more important to her than family , specifically her children.

There was nothing for us she wouldn't sacrifice . She loved us tremendously and unconditionally and made sure we knew so daily.

She was nurturing, supportive, loving, but more importantly she was always there. Growing up we didnt have much in the way of material things. What we did have was a mother that did the best that she could.

She provided us with food, clothing, kept a roof over our heads, and she kept the lights on. She worked two jobs and never once complained because she knew it was for the benefit of her children. She was a good mother and I couldnt have asked for anyone better.

The Bible tells us that God created the heavens and the Earth in six days and that on the seventh day he rests. Well on the seventh day of December 2022, God called my mother home to rest. She's at peace now and reunited with her father and her mother , my grandparents in heaven. The world truly is a lesser place without her presence. I do find comfort in the fact that I will see her again, just not yet. I love you Mom.

Sincerely your son,
Chinedum Joseph Njoku
